Jaguars

Jaguars are active for about 12 to 13 hours a day. They usually hunt early in the morning and in the evening. For the rest of the day, they normally patrol their territory (40 to 80 square kilometers). Jaguars like swimming and they sometimes swim only for enjoyment. Jaguars always hunt alone. They have an exceptionally strong bite. Jaguars usually kill their prey by biting through the skull between the ears. Jaguars prefer to hunt large animals like deer, tapirs, anacondas, crocodiles, and javelins, but they sometimes eat small animals like frogs, mice, and turtles.
